HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 28, 1868

WE are informed on good authority that the number of open ports is shortly to be increased. Wanchow, and also one or more places on the Yangtze below Hankow, are named as the ports to which the foreign trader will be admitted. It will be remarked that Hankow is to remain the Ultima Thule it is now, for the present at any rate. Whether this concession, as we suppose it must be called will prove beneficial to foreign trade, is a question which time will decide. That there will be a variety of opinions. Some people say there are too many "open ports" already. Others desire to see water, either on the coast or on the inland rivers of the country, thrown open to general commerce as fully and freely-as are the ports of the United Kingdom

But whatever difference of opinion there may be as to the commercial value of new ports in China, it is satisfactory to find that the Yangchow outrage is not universally regarded by the Chinese authorities as a precedent for the treatment of foreigners. It may be that the new ports are to be granted as a sort of indi-ever may be the motive of the Chinese, reparation for that offence should be enforced promptly, and exacted from the persons who were actually responsible for it. However, the new ports may be welcomed as a good political sign, affording hope of impressibility in future.

Another omen of good promise is about to shine forth at Peking. The gas works there have positively been commenced, and it is expected that light will be obtained about the time of the new year.

After gas will come telegraphs and railways, and perhaps at no distant period; for if the gold deposits at Chefoo should realize the anticipations formed respecting them, there will come a few hundred

"prospectors," delegated from the mining companies in California, whose presence and whose labours will effect a social and political revolution much more rapidly than the questionable diplomacy of Mr Burlingame's mission, and which can never be expected from the policy of

SUPREME COURT.

(Before the Hon. JUDGE BALL.) Wednesday, Oct. 28. FOREIGN ATTACHMENT. YUE CHEONG v. WILLIAM REYNVAAN.

Mr Hayllar, on behalf of plaintiff, and touching the technical objection, as to the signature attached to the writs, raised by Mr Pollard, Q.c., (on which the case was adjourned) said that the point was not one worth while risking the action upon; and he had therefore given notice of withdrawal

'Mr Pollard (on behalf of Messrs Jouny & Co. and others) said he had got notice of withdrawal a quarter of an hour before. but the question of costs remained for his appearance on Monday. The Judge observed that Mr Pollard came voluntarily. Mr Pollard replied: But our property was attached.

The Judge said that the learned Q.C. had not proved that the property was theirs technical objection.

Mr Pollard continued to say that, even by the opening of his learned friend, there was nothing proved for him to meet; and he wished then to go into the merits.

The Judge: Oh, I can't give you costs. The case will come on in another shape by and by. Is there anything further to be done in this case, Mr Hayllar?

Mr Pollard again resumed. The plaintiff had issued another writ: and the learned Q. C. pleaded the injustice of tying up the property for other five weeks. would rather withdraw the technical object tion altogether. It was an abuse of process of the Court.

Judge: Oh, no; there is no abuse of the process of the Court. What do you think of Mr Pollard's proposal, Mr Hayllar?

Mr Hayllar replied that he had no objection; but it should be borne in mind that the garnishees (Mr Falconer or the Captain might afterwards object. . Mr Pollard protested, at all events. against the cargo being, without a shadow of a title, tied up and subjected to demurrage in that way.

Mr Havllar suggested that the Judge had power to make special orders in certain cases, and such might be done in the present case. The Judge admitted that it was very desirable to have the cargo landed to save demurrage. Mr Pollard offered the security of Messra Siemssen & Co. (agents for Messrs Jenny & Co.) for the amount of cargo, if landed have again to ask leave to appear for Messrs

Jenny & Co. Mr Hayll r: We have no notice of that. Mr Pollard: Well, upon my word. Mr Hayllar: You raised a technical objection; and we can. Mr Pollard proceeded to explain that i was very different from his objection, which, at His Lordship's own suggestion, had been taken, and which had quashed proceedings.

Judge: I beg your pardon, Mr Pollard. I did nothing of the kind; and the question has never been decided by me. Had into the matter.

> > The Admiralty Charts show one or two good bays on the Eastern side of the island. It is worthy of consideration, whether it would not be possible to establish a coaling port there, connecting it by rail or tramway with the mines already open. The distance is not great, (about 70 miles) and with the exception of crossing the range of hills running down the Island from North to South there would at a cursory glance appear to be no great engineering difficulties in the way ; or new mines might be established on the Eastern slope of the range where there is every reason to believe coal will be found

Koyonoma, in the island of Yesso, where he Japanese are working coal mines under the superintendence of Mr Gower, is situated South of Cape Okannie and a little North of the 43° of N. Latitude. Here, so far as the work has gone, it has been done in a thorough manner, and in a way very different from that under Russian auspices. A seam of coal averaging 2 feet thick was discovered cropping out ou the face of a hill distant about a mile and a half from the shore. This seam runs into the face of the hill nearly on a level, dipping towards the N. W. A gallery has been driven in 14 feet high and 12 feet wide, so that the seam of coal is worked throughout its entire thickness, a staging having been raised 8 feet from the floor to work the upper portion—the whole gallery is lined and roofed with timbers in a most substantial manner. this has been done doubtless to protect the niners from the effect of earthquakes. It has been carried to a distance of about 50 feet, the seam continuing of the same thickness throughout the whole distance. The supply can be very considerably increased, by driving galleries to the right and left. One has been carried to the right near to the entrance, from which equally good coal would appear to have been procured ; and there is no doubt from the conmade by Mr Zimmern (the other gentlemen ciled with the so called joint occupation of figuration of the ground that there would be but little difficulty in keeping the mine free from water, however far these branch galleries might be carried.

The ground on which the Archbishop believes, or seems to believe, that the Irish Catholics simply wish to take from others what they don't wish to have themselves. is, that they have professed their intention not to apply the property of the Protestant Church to their own religious uses. He might precisely as well and as logically say that, because the manufacturers did not propose to transfer the protective duties on corn to manufactures, but simply to give back the money they yielded to the nation at large, they were guilty of the "evil eye," in wishing others to have less without getting more for themselves; -or that if a younger brother remonstrates against an elder spending half his father's income on piotures and statuary, to the great detriment of the rest of the family, he should be accused of the "evil eye" because his object is not to get some of the pictures and statues for himself, but only to increase the general fund at the disposal of the household. If the Archbishop did not see the utter sophistry of the whole argument, -and we conclude he did not, or he would be indeed morally unfit for his high position.—we ought to learn from his use of it how the calmest and most lucid intellects may be contracted and distorted by the exigencies of an official position,
